As my first question, what is your assessment of recent Geneva agreement between Iran and 6 great powers and how do you see the future of bilateral relations between Iran and European countries? Particularly in the light of Geneva agreement, how do you see future of bilateral relations between Iran and Germany?

The Geneva agreement is of utmost importance, no doubt. It has already played an important role as to how other international relations have developed and I hope it will continue to do so. This concerns all European countries as well, including Luxembourg.

I've welcomed the Geneva agreement namely because it provided a new hope for lifting the sanctions which I have never considered as the right tool for changing the Iranian stance towards its nuclear program. The European Union has always been pressing on mutual confidence building mechanisms and I actually believe, that the Geneva agreement is the first real confidence building mechanism which will test honesty of intentions on both sides. I do not see a reason for not improving bilateral relations between Iran and Czech Republic when it is clearly proven that intentions of Iranian nuclear program are solely peaceful.
